THE OLD TIME ORCHESTRA.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, BY T. C. HARBAUGH.

It did not know the taking tunes That catch the folks today, We'd call it somewhat out of date If we could hear it play: If now and then it missed a note, Why, nothing e'er was said, And no one heaped his rage upon The patient leader's head.

It filled the bill and filled the house With music very loud, As if it thought it had to please Some deaf folk in the crowd; But yet methinks I would endure A year of care and pain If that old fashioned orchestra Could play for me again.

The dust of years has coated well The creaky viol's strings. And o'er the jolly leader's grave A feathered songster sings; With spectacles astride his nose He early won my heart,
And though today he'd not be "first," I know he knew his art.

I used to list enraptured to The music that he made, It never had its like before, Not e'en when Orpheus played! And oftentimes there seem to come From where the footlights glow And other orchestras delight, The scrapings of his bow.

The fin de siecle strains that thrill The world night after night That old time orchestra knew not If it could rise and play once more The modern bow beside, I know one heart that never would Its queer old tunes deride.

The lights are flashing bright tonight O'er stage and lofty dome, And to my ears an echo comes Like a song across the foam; Yes, in dream I weem to see Again that vanished bow, And I hear the orchestra that play'd In the cherished long ago.

A MAN OF HONOR.

ADAPTED FROM GUY DE MAUPASSANT, FOR THE NEW YORK BY DUDLEY WINTHROP MOORE.

All Beziers-le-Rethel had attended the funeral of Monsieur Badon Leremince, and the last words of the panegyric pronounced over the remains by the old parish priest rang in the ears of every one:

"He was a man of honor!"
He had been a man of honor in all the perceptible dealings of his life, in his words, in his example, in his position, in his carriage, in the cut of his beard, and in the form of his hat. He had never spoken an unjust word, a thoughtless word, a word calculated to wound; had never given alms without ac companying them with good advice; had never held out his hand without making himself appear to give a sort of blessing.

He left two children, a son and a daughter. His son was a counsellor, and his daughter, who was married to a notary, Mons. Poirel de la Voulte, occupied the first social rank in Beziers.

They were inconsolable over the death of their father, for they loved him sincerely.

After the funeral they returned to the house of death, locked themselves in, the son, the daughter and her husband, and prepared to open the will, whose seal was to be broken by them alone, as soon as his remains had been committed to the tenth.

Monsieur Poirel de la Voulte, accustomed as a notary to this sort of business, tore open the large envelope bearing the notarial seal, and began, with his deep grave voice, to read:

My children—my dear children!
I could not sleep the eternal sleep in peace if did not make a confession to you from the gravethe confession of a crime which has weighed heavily on my conscience and disturbed my life.

Yes, I have committed a crime—a frightful, abominable crime, the remembrance of which has haunted me like a spectre and filled my apparently peaceful and happy days with dark dreams and the most agonising remorse. I was twenty-six years old, and had begun my tice at the Paris bar.

from the country into this great city, without ac quaintances, without friends, without relatives. I took a mistress.

How beguiled young men are by this one word,

And yet there are people who cannot live alone.

Solitude fills me with a terrible fear-the solitude in one's room in the evening by the fire.

It seems to me then that I am alone in the world -frightfully alone, but surrounded by vague wall that separates me from my neighbor, whom I dangers, by unknown and horrible things, and the do not know, puts such a distance between him and me as lies between me and the stars I see through my window.

A sort of fever seizes me, a fever of impatience and fear; and the silence of the walls oppresses in which one sees himself alone! It is not only a silence round about the body, but a stillness in the soul; and when then a piece of furniture cracks or trembles, it strikes through to the heart, for one does not expect any noise in this gloomy room.

How often did I begin, quite unnerved and paralized by this somber solitude and death like silence, to speak, to stammer out words without connection, without sense, merely in order to make a noise !

My voice seemed to me then so strange that it filled me with fear.

Is there anything more terrible than to speak alone in an empty house? The voice seems to be that of another, an unknown voice, which speaks without cause to some no one in the empty air. No ear is there to listen, for one knows the words before they float out into the solitude of the room. And when they vibrate so mournfully in the stillness, they only seem to be more of an echo, the strange echo of words which one has thought of in the deepest recesses of the soul.

So I took a mistress—a young girl, like all those young girls in Paris are, who cannot live by their A year went by.

I fied from my apartments, which were now too small, and in which swaddling clothes lay about, and little stockings, and a thousand other things besides, to be found on the furniture, on the arm of a chair, in short, everywhere.

I fled, especially so as not to hear him squall for he squalled on every occasion, when he was un-dressed, when he was washed, when he was touched, when put to bed, when taken out of bed—incessantly.

I had made a few acquaintances, and met in a salon the one who was to be your mother.

I fell in love with her, courted her, asked for her hand, and obtained the consent of her parents.

My life was isolated, as it were. How could I get myself out of this situation? How could I save my-self? How could I confess it?

And I loved your mother with a mad passion, which was still more intensified by this insurmount able obstacle. A flerce rage sprang up in me -a rage that choked me-a rage bordering on madness-yes, on mad ness! Indeed, on that evening I was insane! The child slept.

I rose and looked at as it quietly slept. This creature, this phantom, this nothing, condemned me to an inevitable misfortune. It slept, with open mouth, all wrapped up in covers, in a cradle beside my bed, in which I could

I pressed a long kiss on his hair, then scated my-elf again before the fire.

I thought with terror and abhorrence of what I had wished to do, and asked myself whence came these tempests of the soul, where man loses all conception of things, all control over himself, and acts with a sort of madness or intoxication, without knowing what he does, without knowing where he goes, like a ship in a storm.

The child coughed again.
It tore my heart, if it should die! God! My God! What would become of me?

I got up to look at him. Bending over him with a candle in my hand, I saw him breathing peacefully, and took fresh courage.

But all at once he coughed for the third time.

I felt such a shock, I made such a movement for ward—as when one is frightened by the sight of a horrible thing—that I let my candle fall. After I had picked it up, I turned 'round and noticed that big drops of sweat stood on my eyelida —that sweat which is at once warm and key, which is produced by a dreadful fear in the soul, as if this unspeakable torture and torment, which is red hot as fire and cold as ice, cozed through the bones and the skin of the skull.

I stood bent over my son until the morning, relieved when he remained quiet for a length of time, and shaken by unutterable pain when a feeble cough came from his little mouth.

He awoke with red eyes, his throat awollen, a differing expression in his face. When my mistress returned, I sent at once for a doctor, who came an hour later, and asked, after he had examined the child:

"Hasn't it caught cold ?" I began to tremble, like old people tremble, and tammered: "I was not aware of it."

Then I asked:
"What is it? Is it dangerous?"

"I don't know yet;" he replied. "I will come gain this evening.

He came again in the evening.

All day long my son had lain in as unconquer-ble drowsy state, coughing now and then. In the night a cold on the lungs showed itself. That lasted ten days.

I cannot depict what I suffered during these endess hours that separate the morning from the evening, and the evening from the morning. In short, he died—and I was his murderer And since that moment I have not lived an hour no, not an hour, without the terrible remem brance—this remembrance that disturbs, harasses and tortures the soul, howling within me like raging beast chained up in my mind. Oh, if I only could have gone mad!

Monsieur Poirei de la Voulte took his glasses from his nose with a movement that was peculiar to him when he had finished the reading of a serious document, and the three heirs of the dead man looked at each other without saying a word, pale and motionless.

After a minute's pause, the attorney said:

"That must be destroyed." The other two lowered their heads in token of

She was loving, good and simple; her parents lived in the outskirts of the city, and from time to ime she spent a few days with them.

For a year I lived pretty quietly with her, determined to leave her as soon as I found a young girl who pleased me well enough to marry her. The other I would provide with a small allowance; for in our society it is thus, that the love of a woman is paid for with money, if she is poor, and with presents if she is rich.

But a day came when she told me that she felt

I was frightened to death, and looked over in a

The chain rattled, which I would drag until my death, everywhere, in my future family, in my old age, always, always—the chain with which the woman, through the child, was fastened to my destiny: the chain of the child that I must bring up the world and myself from it.

My mind was utterly upset by this news, and a confused desire, which I could not express, but which I felt in my heart, and which was ready to show itself, like the people who, concealed behind the scenes, wait for their cues, in order to appear on the stage-a criminal desire began to gnaw a

Now I saw myself caught in a trap. Should I, I find not sleep. though I had a child, marry this youg girl whom I adored, or should I tell her the truth and give her up, give up happiness, give up the future, give up everything? For her parents, who were strict, scrupulous people, would never have given me her wife had they known of the affair

I lived through a terrible month, full of anxiety, full of mental torment-a month during which s thousand frightful thoughts crowded in my brain. CHICAGO, Aug. 11 .- The Tivoli, after a splendid opening, 7, to one thousand invited guests, showed a decided effort on the part of the management to give a first class performance, but Saturday night there was a small crowd of paid admissions, the hot weather keeping the attendance down to the lowest point. All records for hot weather have been broken in the last few days, and the natural result has been that the theatres are deserted ....

rly people saw the Sunday night performance 'The Gay Parislans,' when Sadie Martinot made her first appearance in the leading role......White all this grief is going on in the theatres the roof gardens are doing fairly well. The opening of the Alhambra and the Academy drew the usual crowd that an opening attracts, but in each case the man agement probably regrets opening so early, for the public has its own troubles in the way of keeping Boston, Aug. 11 .- Heat of the most intense kind us within the last three days. In the amuse ment line everything is quiet......At Keith's New Theatre the presentation of the "living pictures" was a marked success, and it is safe to say that for artistic designing, elaborate handling and the general presentation of the mise en scene, such a production has never yet been equalled in Boston. . Manager Geo. H. ### ILLINOIS.

Chicago .- Outside of the advance guard of openings for the season there is but little of in-terest to chronicle in the theatrical situation. The Tivoli, I am informed, opened to a company of guests Friday evening with marked success, and the general verdict is that the venture will be a winning one. With the departure of "The Gay all of the regular priced places will be closed. The vervict of the people indicates that this is an ill tration of the survival of the fittest. The pub while wearing the apparel of the high temperature at least, does not care for the serious nor for the hig i priced in the way of theatricals. All previous records in the way of hot weather have been broken by the temperature of Chicago dur-ing the past week, and theatrical ventures have suffered accordingly. Up at the Masonc R to. Garden they smile and say they like , and a the Great Nor hera they profess to pray her more of the secret of thing; but the facts of the case are that when people are sweltering with the heat they are not looking for entertainment, and as a rule they refuse to be amused. Among the open ings for this week are the Tivoli, which has at least the merit of novelly and fair promise of a meritori-ous performance, and the Academy, which opens ous performance, and the Academy, which open with "Coon Hollow," The Alhambra also opens the season with "Darkest America." Unless there is a marked change toward cooler weather it will be found that these houses are opening their seasons too soon to show any profits on the enterprise. HOOLEY'S THEATRE. The long run of "The Gay matines." Parisians" will end with a Wednesday matinee, after which the company leaves for the Pacific Coast. Sadie Martinot is now playing the leading feminine role instead of Amy Busby.

HOFKINS' THEATRE.—New views in the vitascope serve to retain the wonderful interest that has been hown in this feature of the entertainment. The stock company will present "A Gilded Crime," with Frederick Bock and Jessaline Rogers in the cast. Among the vaudeville features will be Lonny and Espatero, Sharp and Flat, Master James Gore Le Roy, the boy soprano; Walter Ellis and others.

CHICAGO OPERA HOUSE.—For this week the Chi cago presents an attractive programme, in which the following are featured: Maud B. Price, Charles Ross and Mabel Fenton, Frank Latona, Misses Leslie and Shattuck, the De Moras, Annie Whitney, Waas and Maddox, James McAvoy, Coyne Bros., Three Gellers, Arline, Romsey, Sweeney and Wool-ford, Florence Beach, the Barons, and Leon and SCHILLER THEATRE. The success achieved by the Schiller Opere Co. in presenting "The Bohemi firl" last week has decided the management to continue Balfe's opera for another week, after which "The Chimes of Normandy" will be given. The twenty-five cent feature in connection with and the house is playing to its capacity for the first ime in its history.

MASONIC TEMPLE ROOF GARDEN.—Included in the

- The Novelty Theatre, London, Eng., was the scene of a fatal accident on Aug. 10, during production of "Sins of a Night." port says: "Mr. Crozier was playing the part of th villain, and the plot provided that he should be stabbed in the last act. The play ran along as usual until the stabbing scene, when, in some man ner yet unexplained, instead of a harmless t ner yet unexplained, instead of a barmless blow being delivered, the dagger penetrated Crozter's breast, indicting a wound which caused his death in a few minutes. Consternation prevailed among the members of the company. A physician was summoned, but his services were of no avail. The spectators were not aware of the terrible mistake that had been made, and Crozier's realistic fall was greated with appliague."

A one act comedy, by Faul Wilstach, was produced for the first time on any stage at Rajfley's National Theatre, Washington, D. C., July 6. The story: A young married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Austin, have Theatre, Washington, b. C., July 6. The story; A young married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Austin, have been saddled with Bridget, a scrvant of twenty years in Mr. Austin's parents' family. The young people haven't the same tact in managing her mild tyrainly as seasoned housekeepers would have, and the inevitable breach comes and Bridget is discharged. The curtain rises upon the lineary of the Austin dat about half an hour after the event. Bridget is up stairs, packing to leave; Mrs. Austin is in the kitchen, preparing her first lincheon, and Mr. Austin has undertaken the task of dusting the library. At this he is discovered, He makes a sad mess. The luncheon comes and proves an indigestible failure; but the young couple determine to stick to their course for the sake of principle. When the nopelessness of the present course has been thoroughly demonstrated to them Bridget appears with her belongings, to say goodbye. All three contain themselves to the last moment, when the new servent from the employment agency comes. It is too much for them, and she is sent back; Bridget is retained, to universal satisfaction, and the moral pointed that light biscuit and good codec recomplement for some lyrang, especially when years have sanctioned it. The cast: Mr. Ashton, William Boag; Mrs. Ashton, Mary Sanders; Bridget, Mrs. Jean Lockwood.

"Bluff"

A one act comedictia, by Faul Wilstach, was produced July 29, at Rapiey's National Theatre, Washington, D. C., for the first time on any stage. The story: Herbert Garrison, a Harvard undergraduate, herbert description. story: Herbert Garrison, a Harvard undergraduate, has been indiscreetly speculative, and in his losses anticipates his vacation allowance. His father, displeased with his wid son, tells him he must earn what he would spend during the Summer. The young man, at a loss to know what to, retires to what he supposes will be a secuded mountain resort and hires out as a water. Here, under these embarrassing circumstances, he meets Grace Edgeworth, his aristocratic sweetheart, and Theodore Switt, a rich nucle, from whom he has extensive expectations. He gets into no end of trouble in trying to explain himself, but when driven to his tether's end he begins a reckless case of bluff, which to his and everyone else's surprise, wins him back the good will of his uncle and the love of his sweetheart. The cast: Herbert Garrison, Charles Mackay; Theodote Swift, John Findlay; Mr. Thrush (landlord), William Boag; Grace Edgewood, May Sanders.

EMILY JORDAN,

Who in private life is Mrs. Carr, was born in London, Eng., June 29, 1872, and came to this country in September, 1886. She located in Jersey City, N J., where she met Mr. Carr, whom she married in September, 1890. Although her husband was a professional she had no inclination for the stage, nor did she ever attempt to entertain her friends by singing, and in fact she knew but parts of some of the popular ballads of the day. Several years after her marriage, having grown weary of the lone someness of life, consequent upon her husband's professional tours, she resolved to fit herself for stage work that she might be ablé to be with him. Finding that she possessed a sweet and sympathetic voice she studied the art of singing for about six months with some of the best masters in this city. She then joined an opera company in which her husband was engaged in order that she might acquire a knowledge of stage deportment and of acting. At the termination of that engagement she played the ingenue role in a farce comedy, after which she joined her husband to present their well known sketch, "A Farce Comedy Rehearsal." How well she has succeeded is apparent to all who have seen their refined comedy creation, to the presentation of which she renders such able assistance.

Variety and Minstrelsy

THE PEDUNNY MAN. WRITTEN FOR NEW YORK CLIPPES BY ARTHUR SINCLAIR.

You've met him, so have I;

You've met him, so have 1;
You've in a serious vein,
By flights of so called wit
He seeks a smile to gain,
And says that cereous things
With him go 'gainst the grain!
You've lost a dear old friend,
The man that puns comes 'round,
And says you've 'neath a pall,
That funerals abound,
And asks you not to run
Your sorrow in the ground!
You're 'broke:' he cheers you up

You're "broke;" he cheers you up With "Here's a greenback, John;" You look around; he points "That bank to sit upon!" And sighs, "How dolorous It is no notes to con!"

He'll nudge you at the play, And say the ballet's sweet, That dancing is to him A great and wondrous feat; And how the music man Beats Time, when Time's so feet!

A friend of yours imbibes: He whispers, "It is clear His debts he liquidates; But 'twill be very queer If whiskey doesn't make The fellow reach his bier!" Though we may oft evade The man of many duns,

And every ill escape For many moons and suns; How can we punish him -The frightful man who puns?

NOTES FROM BARLOW BROS. MAGNIFICENT MIN strels.—We opened the season Aug. 3, at Peters-burg, Va., under the most auspicious circumstances. Mr. Leath, accompanied by Phil McNiven, who are joint owners, with Manager M. A. Moseley, came down from Richmond, and viewed the perform-ance. The first part novelty, "The Outing of the Sports," is a good introduction to the entertain ment. The orchestra is under the direction of Prof lack Hughes. The vocalists and musicians are dressed in outing suits; the draperies are rich satin and plush flags, and the three editions of end men and plush flags, and the three editions of end men are attired in various colored silk plush dress suits, with white satin pumps. Billy O'Day and George Week made strong hits on the first two editions, and Fred Russell and Harry Ward finished the first part with their different styles of comedy. After a finale by Weeks, Russell and Samson, Billy Elerhardt, novelty juggler, appeared and was followed by the plantation sketch of Will G. Mack and Billy O'Day, who left them in good humor for Harry Ward, who told a few different stories, responded to four recalls, and made way for Valentine and Weeks, who made their usual great impression. Zella, demon contortionist, covered himself with glory in his new act, which closed the show. The new car "America" is a beauty, and the work of Claude Long, who puts up the beautiful new paper ahead of the show, is very commendable.

Frances Thurman, a wire performer, known professionally as Mile. Zoe, was drowned, Aug. 5, at curtis Bay, Md., during her performance. Miss Thurman's act was to take a strap in her teeth and silde eight hundred and fifty feet on a steel cable extending from a tower in the river to the shore. The tower collapsed when half the distance was traversed, and the woman fell and was drowned before assistance could reach her.

THE SAWDUST RING. WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, BY MARK MERIDETH.

BY MARK MERIDETH.

I see it again, as I did when a boy,
It brings to my mind such a fund of delight!
Oh, ever to me 'twas a round of sweet joy,
Just after the circus had taken its flight!
We tumbled therein, with a recklessness dire,
And each one resolved that a clown he would be!
Why, even the hoof prints we used to admire,
As o'er them we bounded in juvenile glee!
And that is the reason I can't help but sing
The praises of that far off old sawdust ring!

It stood on the outskirts of our little town, And year after year it was covered anew, or snows of the Winter its gold would make brown,
And circuses then did not weekly pass thro':
That recked we that ours was a one horse affair?
The jokes of the clown were quite new in the

The jokes of the clown were quite new in the day;
They startled with laughter the ambient air,
They had such a flavor, deliciously gay!
The "Here we are, Master! Now what shall I bring !
Would tickle us all, in that old sawdust ring!

looked for that ring as I strolled out to-day, A big row of buildings stands over the spot; I wandered around where we once used to play, Some comrades were living, some, sadly, were not! A much larger ring they're disported in now, Those playmates of mine, both as master clown!

And some had the wrinkles of care on their brow,
And some had achieved quite a city renown.
Oh, nothing still held Life's perennial Spring
Excepting the jokes of that old sawdust ring!

LEWIS LIVINGSTON, Writing from the Circo Exo Lewis Livinostron, writing from the Circo Exo-ces, Guatamata City, Central America, says: "The Patterson Brothers arrived July 9, opened 11, and made a tremendous hit. The natives never saw anything like it, and when the property men went to take down the bars after their third act, the audience set up a howl which made the Plaza the authence set up a now which made the Piaza de Toro snack, and it looked as though a riot was about to start. The bars had to be put up again, and the start of the start of the put up again, and the start of the start of the put up again, and the start of the start of the put up again, and the start of the start of the put up again, and the start of the put up again, and the start of the put up again, and the start of the start

BONHETE BROS.' SHOW NOTES.—It is interesting, if not surprising, the frequency of number thirteen, which really appears to be the natural follower of the Yellow Wagon Show. On the steepest place in the ascent of a very steep hill a swingle tree of one big yellow wagon broke, and as the heavy vehicle was eased slowly backward by the driver as he worked the brake and guided his team in backing downward he looked toward the railroad track which he had crossed before ascending the hill and saw a freight car with the number is staring at him. It then occurred to him that it was the thirteenth of the month. After doubling to get up the hill with a new swingle tree he inquired at the top to know how far it was to the next stand, and was answered: "Just thirteen miles." A curious coincidence of the number thirteen occurred at another point. It was the thirteenth of the month and a heavy rain prevented an exhibition. Impassable roads laid the show up for three days and the horses were put in pasture. As it happened thirteen horses were notosed in a pasture containing thirteen acres, and then came the surprising information that by leaving out the three points it made the next stand just thirteen miles distant. Two accidents were narrowly averted on the night of the thirteenth exhibition, the prevention of the explosion of a big gasoline beacon tank and the fail of a section of packed tier seats, an accident that would have involved the lives of nearly half the large audience by the sinking of the jacks into the yielding soil and consequent overturning of the seats with their hman freight. The evil was overcome very luckily in time, and the unanimous belief among the company now is lint the number thirteen and the yellow wagons have a natural affinity and belong as a mascot to the Bonheur Bros.' Show.

Gronge H. Brying, manager of the Great Eastern Circus, goes with him as announcer, and Eddie King as boss canvas man.

THE CHAS. LEE'S GREAT LONDON SHOWS closed for the season at Pheenix, N. Y., Aug. 7.

NOTES FROM HARRY ANDREWS' SHOW.—Manager Andrews was lately presented with a gold headed cane by the company. Miss Rose, of The Roses, met with a painful accident recently, dislocating her shoulder blade. We will all be glad to get a whitf of the blue Atlantic once again. Manager Andrews is now ahead of the show for a short time, relieving Jack Engle, who is on the sick list. The OLD RELIABLE is welcomed every week by the boys. Salaries all paid up to date and everybody happy. We are in our eighth week.

J. B. Swopword, of Ringling Bros.' Shows, was severely injured at Eldon, i.a., July 27.

NOTES FROM THE WALTER L. MAIN GREAT SHOWS.—We have just left Canada, where we have been for ten weeks and did a great business. Money was plenty and everybody wanted to see Walter L. Main's Show, because we give great satisfaction, and wherever the Barnum & Bailey was billed on us we did better business. We have had one of the greatest features born with the show that the world has ever seen, in the way of a horse giving birth to a colt, Aug. 5, at Canandaigua, N. Y., which only weighed 8', ib and only two hands and three inches high. This is the smallest horse in the world. If there is anyone who knows of a smaller one we would be pleased to hear from them. We call the newcomer "Canandaigua." The first day in the States we erected a new canvas 150ft, top with three 50ft, middle pieces, Our people were glad to get back to the States and see the old flag again, as it was a rare thing to see an American flag in Canada. Col. Chas. Seeley, with the Forepaugh-Sells Brothers Shows, writes to The Clarper that Chas. N. Thompson, who left the show early in the season, because of ill health, is now being caref for at St. Lukes Hospital, Chicago, Ill., where he is rapidly recovering.

Lukes Hospital, Chicago, Ill., where he is rapidly recovering.

"Now White's Circus is now playing through Andama to reported good business.

Notes from the Ballenger Family Pavilion Show.—We are in our fourteenth week of prosperity. The party in white appears every Sunday morning. Mrs. P. J. Ryan presented her husband with a baby girl July 26, at their home in Harrisville, W. Va. Levardo, with his dancing barrel, astonishes the natives. The management has a whole new outfit coming to Caldwell, W. Va. Mike Malone is our boss canvas man, with eight assistants. Everybedy is well and The Old Reliable is a welcome visitor ever week.

Cincinnati.—The fates were tempted last Summer by the managers who indulged in an epi-demic of early opening, and as a result there was one continuous performance of treasurers digging into the safe to make up guarantees. Cincinnati is a peculiar sort of place. Summer theatricals have never thrived, for the good reason that it is impossible to coax people indoors when the open air at-tractions are so numerous. The Buckeye metropo-lls was well named "The Paris of America," for Cincinnati has offered a more varied amusement menu this Summer than many cities with twice her population. There has been one promise of a re-newal of theatricals during the dog days. Last week the mercury fairly bubbled in the thermometers, and the hottest weather of the year was experienced on the morning that the inaugural of the

Last Week's Events .- The intense heat which prevailed during the past week materially helped the various roof gardens, but greatly reduced the attendance at the few theatres now open. Notes of preparation for the coming season are now heard on every side. Many new plays are in active reon every side. Many new plays are in active re-hearsal, and the heralding of the press agent is as triumphant as of yore. Very little work, however, is being done upon any of the theatres, and the man-agerial motio at this time seems to be "let good enough alone." More than a ripple of interest was chough atone." More than a ripple of interest was aroused during the week by the institution of a suit by Mrs. Henry E. Abbey for a legal separation from her husband, the well known manager, upon the grounds of crueity and desertion. The specifications in her petition are so startling and seem so incredible there is a general disposi tion to accept as true Mr. Abbey's emphatic denial of the allegations, or at least to believe that slight wrongs have been greatly magnified in the telling.

TONY PASTOR'S THEATRE .- Notwithstanding the fact that the current offering at this house is re-plete with strong acts and old favorites, the severity of the heat limited the attendance to a marked degree on Monday, Aug. 10, and performers and auditors were alike affected by the humidity, the result being an unusually quiet time anid surroundings which are usually resounding with appiause and activity. The Elinor Sisters, enterprising and up to the times, offered new material in their always amusing sketch; Gallagher and West worked with an encouraging amount of applause to urge them on to mirth provoking; Maud Nugent sang topical songs with a degree of carneatness unexpected under the depressing atmospherical conditions; Baldwin and Daly performed their excellent act with success; the Silvera sang songs with illustrations to an appreciative audience, and Thos. E. Glynn made splendid headway with his marvelous; banjo playing; Sadle Connoily and R. J. Moye, were received hilariously in their funny sketch; the Bootblack Quartet sang with excellent effect; the La Verde Sisters sang and danced in a manner to win applause; Louise Vallantine offered a pleasing specialty, and Winifred Stewart was well received for her good singing. McKenna and Hughes offered a sketch which amused. Prince Pharoah and Jenny Devere opened in a double postoring act, but when preparing for his second show Mr. Pharoah was overcome by the intense heat, and was removed to Believue Hospital, where he is likely to be confined for some days, as his case is very serious. Master Daulel McCarthey, a member of the contingent of galiery singers who have entertained us so well for the past few months, is winning laurels for himself by singing choruses for Mand Nugent his week, as well as doing a specialty on the stage, which is vigorously applanded. His voice is extremely sweet and melodious and his music is rounded and singing at Long Branch, N. J., where his road company opened its annual Fall tour.

performers whose abilities are beyond question, performers whose abilities are beyond question, and, though the attendance has suffered greatly through the medium of the prevailing climatic conditions, enough response has been gathered from those of the house's loyal patrons to sufficiently stimulate the efforts of the players, and a thoroughly enjoyable entertainment is the result. Geo. II. Adams and family, in a pantominic sketch, were cordially greeted on their opening night, and by their clever work won a deal of plaudits. Signor Delphino created a most agreeable impression for his work as a musical clown, and Louis Gratan, in linger whistling, was accorded his share of applause for his novel and entertaining contribution. Others on the long bill whose efforts were no less deserving of recognition are Davis and Jerone, Irish eccentries; Beatrice Clark, in songs and dances; Edward R. Decker, in character changes; Leona Booth, contertionist; Leah Starr, in songs and dances; Campbell and Campbell, in a sketch; Isabella Hurd, in songs; Madame be Rossett, gun manipulator; Lydia Pierce, vocalist; Tyrene and Ewaline, in a sketch; George Graham, monologue entertainer; Leola Mitchell Lillian Kennedy, soubrette, and James and, though the attendance has suffered greatly George Graham, monologue entertainer; Leol Mitchell, Lillian Kennedy, soubrette, and Jame Kennedy, comedian, and Nellie Maguire.

KRITH'S UNION SQUARE THEATRE.—This house was about haif full on Monday, Aug. 10, the heat being responsible for the falling off in attendance. Joe Cawthorne heads the current bill and won an immediate success through his clever monologue Immediate success through inserver monocoge and excellent concertina playing. His act is a departure from the ordinary and well merits warm praise. Nellie Dunbar, a newcomer to the vaude villes, found a hearty welcome awaiting her at this house, her sweet singing and clear meloatious voice being quickly recognized for their full worth and applauded in generous degree. Morton and Revelle, who were among old friends, came in for immediate favor, the wilty patter of Mr. Morton and the pleasing assistance rendered by Miss Revelle gaining a great amount of applaude. Schafer and Montl, a team of lady duettists, new to the East, were well received; Melville and Mamile Conway, in a diversified act, made excellent headway; Almont and Dumont, in a musical act, pleased; the Glees did well; the Six Reed Birds amused, and the Youjeres, French grotesques, fuillied their fitte. John Lorenze made a hit with his dancing, which is about the best yet seen upon this stage. The Brothers Detroit entered their second week. Hughey Dougherty had considerable to say on the subject of politics, and was amusing. The bill next week will be enlivened by the presence of Ryan and Richfield, and Geo. Catherina Partho, in character dances, was a new comer, and did well. The Manhattan Comedy Four continued to be a prominent feature of the bill, and won several recalls for their excellent singing. Pitrot, mimic, was high in the favor of his audience, his representations of prominent men meeting with full a pproval. Arnim and Wagner, operatic duettists, were well liked for their elever work. The Newsboys quinted sang several of the popular ains of the day and won applause. Edgar Ely, comedian, as the future man, was amusing. The Weston Sisters, in songs and dances, received full-recogn ton for their work, and Netlie Seymour, in character songs, did well. The programme concluded with the vitascope, which was still in favor. This is advertised as the last week of the roof garden, the music hall being announced to open Aug. 15 with Zaoo and many other European attractions. Procton's Pleasuree Palack.—Roof garden entertainments have first call in the prevailing atmospheric conditions, and in consequence the performance given at this resort was but slimity attended Monday evening. 12. ### IN THESE BICYCLE DAYS.

Tom, Tom, the piper's son, He stole a wheel, and away he run; But a copper feet Young Tom could beat, And they locked him up in Harrison Street,

Jack Spratt's Trousers would flap, His wife, she made hers tight, And so between the two, you see, They kept the average right.

Peter, Peter, pumpkin eater, Had a wife and couldn't keep her, Took an axe and smashed her bike, So she had to stay at home at night.

The bicycle riddle,
The strangest part of the deal;
Just keep your accounts,
And add the amounts;
The "sundries" cost more than the wheel.

Little Tommy Titmouse Worked for a 'cycling house, Went to his meals On other men's wheels.

There was a man in our town As wise as were our sires; He ran across a piece of glass, And punctured both his tires And when he saw the air was out. He took his little nickel pump, And pushed it in again.

Ding dong bell,
There's the man who fell.
Who knocked him down.
The meanest man in town.
Who called the "cop":
A man who saw him drop.
What a wicked man was that,
To try to kill the cyclust fat,
Who never did him any wrong,
Eut kept a pedaling right along.

father was a fierce old man who had on more than one occasion spoken very nuklndly of har lover.

"Fear him not," responded the fearless youth.
"But he will follow," she insisted.
Harold clapsed her once more to his bosom.
"I don't think," he said scornfully.
"I know he will," she cried.
"Not much," Harold assured her; "I shall see that his tre is punctured and his handle bar dropped in the well,"
With an almost impassioned embrace she flung her arms about his neck and then hurried away.
"At midnight, dearest," she cailed, as she threw him a kiss.

"At midnight, darling," he called in response, and disappeared in the rapidly gathering twilight. CHAPTER II

CHAPTER II.

It is scarcely necessary to explain to the modern reader that these two young persons were planning an elopement and that the steeds which were to carry them beyond the limits of paterial wrath and revenge were bleycles.

Therefore let us hurry through the second chapter and get along to the third.

CHAPTER III.

"CHAPTER III,

Harold stood beneath the window gazing heavenward where Cynthia sat waiting for his cail.
"Paring." His voice floated upward in a whisper and fell upon her entranced ear.
"Waiting, dearest," she nurmured, as she leaned far over the window sill and peered down in the very mid of the night.
In a moment he had thrown a ladder against the wail and in another she was in his arms.
"Nothing on earth shall part us now," he said
fliercely, shaking his clenched list toward the window behind which the father slept,
"Nothing, dearest, nothing," and her white arms
clung about Lis neck passionately.

Sport.
The Brighton Beach Racing Association continued Its Summer meeting Tuesday, Aug. 4, the running of the Wave Crest Stakes, won by Refugee, and the victory of Cleophus, in the contest for the Distant victory of Cleophus, in the contest for the Distart Stakes, being among the more important performances of the afternoon. The prevailing humidity drove a large crowd from the city to the shelter of the cool grand stand and breezy lawn and all hands enjoyed a day of splendid sport. Betting favorites were victorious in only three of the seven carded events, the result being that "the talent" added another day of surprises to their rapidly growing list. The most noteworthy event of the day was the shattering of the track record for one mile by Lehman, the Fleischman entry turning the distance of Tenny in 1800. Summary:

There can be little importance attached to the nning of the six events carded for the afternoon of Friday, 7, the day being ordinarily one of light patronage and last week was no exception to the rale of low turnstile registers. The chief advanlage the list of events afforded was the opportunity for betting, but owing to the downfall of a majority of the favorites the crowd of regulars found but slim consolation on the day's resusta. The Brookside Plate, $1,000, was won by his Yale, the Brookside Plate, $1,000, was won by his Yale, the second horse being Pitcroy, with Liscard third. The race for the Patcham Stakes was won by Eau Gallie, formerly the property of Mr. Croker, but now owned by Mr. Sibary, an English horseman. At the Ripon St. Wilfrid meeting, on the same day, E. Wishard's George H. Ketcham, an American horse, ran second in the race for the Carlo Plate, Leopold de Rothschild's Valide being first, with King Crowthird.

de Rothschild's Valide being first, with King Crow third.

The Brighton meeting closed 6, the most interesting event being the victory of Eau Gallie in the race for the Preston Handicap. Furze Eush was second, Quill third. Eau Gallie was formerly owned by Richard Croker, being bred in America, but after his Patcham Stakes victory was bid up in the selling and was purchased by a Mr. Sibary.

The Lewes Summer meeting opened Friday, 7, the principal race of the day being won by Pierre Lorillard's American bred horse Draco, Brigg being second and Kilkerran third.

The Priory Stakes, a feature of the last day of the Lewes meeting, Saturday, 8, resulted in a dead heat between August Beimont's American horse, Terpsichore II, and Lord Derby's Lord Key, Terpsichore II being the betting favorite. Len was third.

The Maiden Plate, at Birmingham, was won Monday, 10, by Pierre Lorillard's two year old, Glaring, Oom Paul second, and Col. Foster's filly, by Ayshire-Lady Helen, third.

In Saddles at Newport.

The Summer meeting of the Queen City Jockey Club, at its race course, near Newport, Ky., opened auspiciously Aug. 4, and, as the stables are all well filled with good grade thoroughbreds, the fields have continued large and the sport of consequent excellence. The patronage has been good thus far, and as the course is situated almost in the heart of the Blue Grass district there is every reason to believe that the meet will result in its usual profitable manner. Record Breaking in Ohio.

The Columbus (O.) Driving Park was the scene of the first Grand Circuit meeting ever held in the capital of the Buckeye State, Aug. 3-8, and the capital of the Buckeye State, Aug. 5-5, and the affair was successful from all standpoints. The attendance maintained a profitable average and the sport was of evenly high class, the warm weather and excellent track making possible the breaking of two pacing records. The free-for-all pace was made in faster time than was ever before recorded for a four heat contest, Frank Agan, on 6, winning the first heat in 2003, Driver Starr then taking Robert J. in hand and sending him through to victory in the next three straight heats in 2045, 2044, 2022, thus winning the greatest pacing race ever seen. On 7, Driver Andrews brought out John R. Gentry for the purpose of essaying a reduction of the stailion pacing record, the track and weather being favorable and the son of Ashland Wilkes being in the finest fettle of his life. Andrews got the word when his charge was moving well and sent him to the quarter unpaced, a running horse here picking him up and continuing to the finish. Gentry worked like a machine, was full of "go" at the three quarters and came home steady as a clock in 2003, as new mark. The quarter time was 0211, 1902, 1233, 2003, we append a summary of the weeks racing: 230 class trotting, $1,500—Sone-zer first, Corrie McGregor second, Red Star third, Ben fourth. His mother died recently. He has our heartfelt sympathy.... Time brings its changes very rapidly. After returning from our vacation we learned that Bro. Head had gone West. He will be greatly missed by the local players, as well as by his personal friends, feeling assured that we are included in both. We personally feel as though one of our family had strayed away. Hoping that he may soon return, we wish him a hearty success in his business ventures, and hope that there will always remain at least one memory tablet filled with pleasant recollections of his stay in New York and vicinity. Players who expect to meet Bro. Head can be sure of a least two things, that he Tho. Dr. Schaefer says that the players of Brocklyn are strongly inclined to reorganize their checker club, and that Prof. Flint, who at one time was Brooklyn's chief hustler, is again seriously thinking of taking up the game this Winter. If this were only true Brooklyn would have a checker aggregation to be proud of. We hope the Professor will push the matter...... Newark and Patterson are thinking of having a contest for $100 a side. This would indeed be interesting. A correspondent says th

The tourney which has been notable for surprises has made a few things pretty clear. The capacity to decentral the property of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the conness however slight, one's self being in adverse circumstances, is undoubtedly a considerable factor in determing a player's rank among a long list of able competitors. This fact was never made more clearly conspicuous than in the case of Herr Lasker in the present mighty struggle. He has won first place, but without the quality just noted and the luck that gave opportunity for its development against several antagonists, he would not have attained the rank he has to which his

Another thing has grown wonderfully. There is scarce-ly a game that for 8. has not been referred to a contest at some time or other between Herren Thingumbob and "Thinkasgreatdealofhimselfsky," in Utopla, or some-where. However interesting this may be to the historian of curious coincidences, it is rarely of the slightest use in unfolding the course of the battles. Anyway, we have

New York vs. Washington.

The New Yorks defeated the Washingtons on Aug. 4, at the Polo Grounds, this city, after an in-teresting struggle of ten innings, and moved into teresting struggle of ten innings, and moved into ninth place in the championship race. The game was one postponed by rain on June 24. German gave his old companions quite a surprise by his excellent pitching, and had he received perfect support his club would have been credited with a victory. Meekin, too, did good work in the pitcher's position, but was his afely at the right time. Location position, but was hit safely at the right time. Loose fielding on the part of the visitors in the fourth inning, aided by a single by Davis and Beckley's leiding on the part of the visitors in the fourth inning, aided by a single by Davis and Beckley's double bagger, gave the New Yorks four runs and what looked like a winning lead, but after that the Washingtons played a steady upfull game and added two earned runs to their credit in the sixth inning on a single by Farrell and a home run hit into the right field seats by O'Brien. Then on singles by McGuire, Farrell and Brown and a couple of errors by Gleason, the visitors tailled two more runs in the eighth inning, which gave them a temporary lead. An error by Dumont, which gave Connaughton a life, a sacrifice by Warner and another double bagger by Beckley enabled New York to the the score. Neither side scored in the ninth. In the tenth Washington was retired in one, two, three order, but New York tailled on a single by Connaughton, a sacrifice by Warner, a steal to third by Connaughton and Beckley's high fly to deep right field. Beckley played a wonderful game, and greatly aided his club in gaining a victory. Washington. A. A. E. Naw York. T. R. B. O. A. E. Naw York. T. R. B. O. A. E. Chicago vs. Cleveland.

The Clevelands defeated the Chicagos on Aug. 4, at Chicago, Ill., by bunching their hits in the eighth linning, and turning what looked like certain defeat into a brilliant victory. Young was batted safely and at the right time during the first five innings.

the second inning after costly errors had been made by Meyers and Cross, enabled the Chicagos to win. Donahue pitched magnifecently, and had his support been perfect the Chicagos would have been credited with only one run instead of five. Terry was very effective for four innings, but the visitors guaged his delivery to the extent of three earned runs in the fifth inning. With only one man out in Chicago's half of the fifth inning rain stopped the game. The long safe hits were a triple bagger by Everitt and a double by Decker.

contest that had a close and exciting finish. The visitors played a sharp fielding game, and by timely batting in the ninth inning came near tieing the score. A heavy shower of rain delayed the game fully thirty minutes. The home team took a good lead in the first inning, and held it to the end, although the Washingtons gave them a scare in the ninth when they batted in two earned runs. The long safe hits were home runs by Bergen and O'lirien and doubles by Hamilton and Lush. Boston. The Book of the the Book

Bases on balls and errors were the chief factors that enabled the Washington fown on Aug. 7. |
Stivetts pitched an excellent game up to the eighth inning, when he gave two men their base on balls, then several errors followed by the infielders, and Washington scored two rons. Stivetts was then replaced by Sullivan, and two more runs were scored of n a sharp single by Pemont, giving the visitors a lead which they easily held to the end. German was batted harder than Stivetts was then replaced to Sullivan, and two more runs were scored on a sharp single by Pemont, giving the visitors a lead which they easily held to the end. ## Cincinnati vs. Louisville.

The Cincinnati vs. Louisville,
The Cincinnatis scored their seventh straight victory over the Louisvilles on Aug. 8, at Cincinnati, O., when they met for the seventh game of their series. Frazer's wildness in giving three men their series. Frazer's wholeses in giving three men their base on bails, hitting two more batsmen with pitched bails and making a wild pitch and then being hit safely at the right time, were the chief causes for the defeat of the visitors. Foreman pitched a steady game, and, although batted a trifle harder than Frazer was, his faultless support helped him to keep the hits wide apart, except in the eighth inning, when the Louisvilles batted in two earned runs. The long safe hits were a triple tween the pitchers, and while each was batted quite hard at times both pitched a heady game and displayed rare judgment on several occasions with men on the bases and no one out. Ely's running jump catch of Cuppy's hard line drive in the eleventh inning prevented the home team from winning. Childs was put out of the game by Umpire Enslie for objecting too forcibly to one of his decisions, and O'Connor took his place, the latter going to first base and Tebeau to second. Stenzel's batting and the fielding of Ely, Smith and McAleer were features.

Superior all around work enabled the New Yorks to defeat the Brooklyns on Aug. 8, at the Polo Grounds, this city. Payne was relied on to fool the home team, as he had done on former occasions, but this time the locals were not to be taken in on his fine assortment of curves, shoots and drops. He was batted hard and with a frequency, especi ally in the seventh inning, that was appalling to the supporters of the club from the eastern end of Greater New York. Payne's support was none the best, but even had it been perfect the result would have been in favor of the home club, as the latter earned two runs to Brooklyn's one. Clarke was in good form and pitched a masterly game, being very effective at critical stages; then, too, he received faultless support. Davis played a great all 'round game, and Connaughton made a catch in deep left field, and then, by a wonderfully accurate throw to Beckley, helped to complete a double play. Joyce has succeeded Gleason as captain, and will, while Manager Irwin is on a three weeks' vacation, have full charge of the team in his absence. The new captain-manager put up a very snappy game at third base, and helped Beckley in making a double play.

HROOKLYN, T. R. B. O. A. E., NEW YORK, T. R. B. O. A.K. earned two runs to Brooklyn's one. Clarke was in

Timely batting and sharp fielding, aided by Orth's superb pitching, enabled the Philadelphias to defeat the Bostons on Aug. 8, at Philadelphia, Pa. Orth prevented the visitors from making more than five safe hits, including a double bagger; from which they managed to score two runs. Sullivan, too, did good work in the pitcher's position, bu

The Bostons turned the tables on the Philader-phias on Aug. 10, when the teams met for the final game of their series, defeating them in a contest in which the visitors' spirited fielding contrasted with the locals' inertness. Gumbert pitched good ball until the fifth inning, when the Bostons found his delivery for two runs. In the sixth, however, they

Washington vs. Baltimore.

The Baltimores defeated the Washingtons on Aug. s, at Washington, D. C., in a contest marked by heavy hitting, in which the odds were slightly in favor of the visitors. McMahon and Mercer were batted so hard that they were compelled to retire, the former after the third inning in favor of Ciarkson, who fared little better at the hands of the home team than dtd his predecessor, and Mercer gave way to Norton, the Southern Leaguer, after gave way to Norton, the Southern Leaguer, after the fifth inning. The newcomer did exceedingly well for two innings, but in the eighth was batted hard. Doyle led in the batting, closely followed by Kelley, the former making five safe hits out of six times at bat, while Kelley's four hits included a home run and two double baggers. The other long safe hits were a home run by Brown and double baggers by Demont, Farrell, Cartwright and Jen-nings.

Superior all around work enabled the Baltimores to again win when these teams met on Aug. 10, at Baltimore, Md. McJames was batted freely and retired in favor of Norton in the sixth. Pond puzzled the visitors up to the sixth inning, when they reached a solution to the extent of three tallies. Then they added one more in the seventh on two singles, a base on balls and Selbach's by to centre field. Several changes were made in Washington's team, but to no advantage so far as a victory to them was concerned. The long safe hits were double baggers by Demont, McCauley, Brodie and Clarke.

Hickle scored 59 for the New York team. On the same day, at Prospect Park, Brooklyn, N. Y., the Staten Island eleven defeated the Manhattan eleven, scoring 159 for five wickets to 61 in an one inning game. A. E. Patterson, with 45, not out, and J. Flannery, with 24, not out, did the best batting for their respective teams. W. Robertson's batting and bowling enabled the Bohemian Club to defeat the Alameda Club in a championship contest of the California Association, July 26, at Alameda, Cal. by 86 to 22, the totals of the first inning. The Alameda eleven made 96 in their second inning, and the stumps were then drawn. Robertson scored 56 runs, going in second wicket down and being the last man out, and bowled 6 wickets for 11 runs in the first inning, and 6 wickets for 8 runs in the second inning. J. J. Moriarity, formerly of the Alameda eleven, played for the first time with the Bohemian team, and a formal protest was entered against his playing. E. Hood made 49 in the second inning of the Alameda team.

There Games were played Aug. 8, in the cham-team.

THREE GAMES were played Ang. 8, in the championship series of the New York Association, the second team of the Manhattan Club defeating the Harlem Club, at Central Park, this city, scoring 30 for seven wickets to 17. The second eleven of the New Jersey Athletic Club defeated the Paterson Club, at Bergen Point, N. J., by 134 to 64, and the St. George Athletic Club defeated the Brooklyn Club by 65 to 39, both being decided by the totals of the first inning.

Club, at Bergen Point, N. J., by 134 to 64, and the St. George Athleite Club defeated the Brooklyn Club by 65 to 39, both being decided by the totals of the first inning.

THE Beimont Club, of Philadelphia, Pa., played two games on its ground in that city, Aug. 8, defeating the visiting Phoenixville eleven by 127 to 97, and the Linden Club, of Camden, N. J., by 135 to 84, both being decided by the totals of the first inning. W. Freeland scored 52 against the Phoenixville team, and E. M. Cregar made 30 against the Linden team, J. B. King bowled effectively against the latter eleven, taking 5 wickets for 14 runs.

Elevens of the Philadelphia and Germantown Clubs contended on Aug. 8, on the latter's ground at Philadelphia Pa. W. Roper made 63, not out, and Burrows got 39, of the total of 186 compiled by the Philadelphia team. The Germantown team made a total of 94, of which W. George got 22 and C. S. Newhall 19. G. P. Hood bowled 5 wickets of the Germantown team for 29 runs.

A NOVEL contest took place Aug. I, at Chicago, ill., an eleven of the right handed cricketers then defeating an eleven of the left handed cricketers tof that city by 111 to 83, the totals of the first inning. A. E. The Annual Cowes Regatta Week was initiated off Cowes, Isle of Wight, Aug. 3, with victories for Caress and Penitent. The regatta of the Royal Yacht Squadron, of which the Prince of Wales is commodore, began Tuesday, 4, the race for the Queens Cup, the chief trophy in English aquatics, being the most important event. The race was awarded to Capt. James A. Orr Ewing's Mohawk on time allowance. The cabled

The race was awarded to Capt. James A. Orr Ewing's Mohawk on time allowance. The cabled report says that the course was from the Castle Westward to and around the Lymington Spit Buoy, thence Eastward to and around the Bullock Patch Buoy, outside the Nab Lightship, and back to Cowes, fifty miles. A good, steady breeze was blowing from the Northwest when the start was made, and this made the point of sailing to the first mark a close reach.

The starters were the Emperor William's Meteor, the Prince of Wales' Britannia, John Gretton Jr.'s Hester, and Capt. James A. Orr Ewing's Mohawk. The Meteor crossed the starting line first, but the Britannia was close up, and had the advantage of being in the weather position. The other yachts followed in procession. The race throughout was a close one between the Meteor and the Britannia. The Meteor was the first to cross the finish line, at 4h. 45m. 30s., followed by the Britannia.

The Hester and Mohawk were considerably behind, but as they received large time allowances from the Meteor it apparently required much figuring on the part of the judges to decide which boat had really won the race. The Meteor allowed fifteen minutes to the Britannia, forty-live minutes to the Meteor and one hour and twenty minutes to the Mohawk. The judges got mixed up and first announced that the Hester was the winner. The Mohawk was the last to finish, and the judges, after a little forther figuring, discovered that she had saved her time by three minutes, and had therefore won on her allowance.

The race for the Royal Yacht Squadron's prize of hawk was the last to noish, and the judges, after a little forther figuring, discovered that she had saved her time by three minutes, and had therefore won on her allowance.

The race for the Royal Yacht Squadron's prize of $500, salled on Wednesday, 5, was so disappointing and unsatisfactory that it was declared no race and ordered resalled. The starters were Britannia, Meteor, Caress, Alisa and Satinita. When off Ryde the Meteor carried away her bowspit and topmast, because of a too great pressure of canvas, and withdrew. Britannia, Satinita and Caress went on the wrong side of one of the stake boats and were disqualified, and Alisa was also disqualified after she had finished.

In the race for the Town Prize of $500 the Alisa was the first to cross the line, followed closely by Caress, Britannia, Corsair, Satinita and Isoide. There was a fine breeze blowing and the yachts covered the course in fast time, Alisa winning in spite of a time allowance granted Corsair. In the twenty rater class, Audrey, Saint, Penitent, Samphire and Niagara were competitors, the prize, $100, going to Samphire with Penitent second.

The Meteor Challenge Shield, offered by Emperor William, of Germany, was the prize which Alisa, Satinita and Britannia cruised from Cowes around the lsle of Wight on Friday, Aug. 7. The boats inshed in the order given, the Emperor's yacht, Meteor, not starting.

On Saturday, 8, the scene shifted to Portsmonth, when the Royal Portsmouth Corinthian Yacht Chub supervised a race between the twenty raters Niagara, Audrey, Isoide, The Saint and Penitent, over a course laid out off Southsea. A light northwest wind prevailed and a heavy rainfall was in evidence during most of the twenty-eight mile journey. Victory came to Penitent by a narrow margin, the Yankee craft, Niagara, being second.

The Dumaven Challenge Cup, offered by the erstwhile cup challenger, was won, Aug. 10, off Calshot, by Audrey from Niagara, second, and The Samphire, Penitent, Saint and Isoide.

"Thirties" at Newport.

There was a strong wind prevailing on Wednesday, Aug. 5, off Newport, R. I., when five of the band of thirty footers which have been racing in the vicinity of that fashionable resort met in a very spirited race over a sixteen mile course. II. B. Duryea's Vaquero III added another victory to her string by a small margin, Hera being a close second. Summary:

QUEEN OF THE OCEAN.

St. Louis, of the American Line, Now Holds the Westward Championship.

The steamship St. Louis passed Sandy Hook, N. J., at 11h. 26m., morning of Aug. 7, having made the westward passage from the Needles, off Southampton, Eng., in 6d. 2h. 24m., thereby establishing new record for the journey. When her sister ship, new record for the journey. When her sister ship, the St. Paul, steamed into port on June 5, last, she established a new mark for the ocean passage by registering 6d. 5h. 32m., but the St. Louis, on her last voyage, cut 3h. 8m. from that record, covering 3,055 knots in daily runs of 417, 519, 530, 520, 510 and 499 knots, an average of 20.86 knots per hour. When the St. Louis arrived in Southampton July 22, arter-her last eastward passage, she was put in the Southampton Graving Bock where she was subject to complete rejuvenation, including the scraping and painting of her bottom and a thorough overhauling of her boilers and engines, a process which well fitted her to successfully essay a record smashing journey to her home port. By her victory Yankee ingenuity and American shipbuilding gains added laurels.

JAKE GAUDAUR, accompanied by his financial backers, J. W. Smith and R. Dessette and his brother in law, J. S. S. Harris, sailed for England from this port, Aug. 5, for the purpose of beginning operations for his forthcoming match with James Stansbury, the present world's champion, for The Sportsman's Cup, a side stake of $1,250 and the world's championship.

THE American Canoe Association will hold its aunual meet on the River St. Lawrence, at Grindstone Island, in the heart of the picturesque and beautiful Thousand Islands, Aug. 14-28, a regatta programme, covering twenty-eight events, having been arranged for the amusement of members and visitors.

The N. Y. Y. Club's Annual Cruise to Newport—An Accident to Colonia. The annual cruise to Eastward of the New York yacht Club was inaugurated on Monday, Aug. 3. with a race for schooners, "thirties," sloops and cutters, the chief interest centering in the contests between the "two stickers." Not wholly unexpected was the victory of J. Roger Maxwell's Emerald, although the work of Colonia has added many admirers to the goodly list the old cup candidate has acquired. The yachts sailed over a semi-triangular course of twenty-one miles to Green's Ledge, off the Norwalk Islands, which was eleven miles before the wind, then five miles to windward and a reach to the finish off the harbor at Huntington, L.

THE amateur swimming championships of the Amateur Athletic Union will be held at the Wayne Natatorium, Delaware Co. ### AFTER THE FOURTH.

Well, old chap, here's a last good night;
Champagne's a deluding fad.
Hasten home in bromo seltzer mood
And latel yoursel' a cad.
Should you fink two lamp posts waver
With a niteroscopic glare,
Leok out for the one that's nearest,
For the other one won't be there.
When before your house, in pantomime,
Double doors rise up—beware'
Put your key in the first one softly;
For the other one the there.
And if two mothers in law you see
Watching you from the stare,
Speak to the cross one kindly,
For the other one won't be there.
Should your collar become unwieldy

For the office one won't be there.

Should your cellar become unwieldy
And two buttons dart here and there,
Middy cuss at the one you're breaking.
For the other one will not be there.
And when your glass, pre Raphaeille,
Presents a bunged up pair.
At the ugliest one gaze blankly.
For the other one won't be there. Judge,

THE DECEIVER UNMASKED.

The little birds twittered some doleful twits in the trees over their heads, the soft similght sifted brough the fluttering leaves above them, and the ambains bleated several plaintive bleats in the adjoining pasture. The fatr and gentle maiden looked up into the strong young man's face with a look that told of a long, long night of suffering, and a co-vulsive sigh oozed out from between her rare ripe lips.

"Fen me," said Filzhugh DeLancey Poindexler, "what it is."
With a wild cry of despair Gertrude Ostermeyer dung herself upon his besom and sobbed:
"On, it will break my heart! I do not care to live! All the smitght has gone out of my life."
"Nay, darling," he said, as he removed one of her flufly curls from between his teeth; "It is not so. I see a sunteam even now playing upon the mpe of your nerk. Do not weep. I will have the tree trimmed and all will yet be well."
"No, no" she walled; "It is too late! We must part!"
"rait!" he yelled, as he fripped backward over a protruding root, "No, say not that! Surely, surely you are jesting."
"Alas, it is too true." she aniswered, as she took her handkerchief and flicked the dust from his broad back. "Henceforth we may only be friends."
"Oh, this is terribe, terrible." the strong man howled, as he rubbed the shoulder upon which he had alighted. "What has come over you? Is it aught that I have done or said?"
Then she drew herself up grandly before him and replied:
"You told me that you came of a proud and ancient faturity. You told me that your people were among the best in the land. Ah, how could you deceive me? How could you belray the trust I had reposed in you."
"And," he demanded, in tones that were rendered unsteady by the Intense feeling pent up within him, "what had led you to belterly retorted: "Yesterday, when your mother cailed to tell me that she hoped we would never have cause to regret h, she said I done when she meant 'I did."
"With a pitful cry he leaped over the fence and departed, while three lambkins bleated an equal number of the most plaintive bleats the lonely girl had ever heard blet. *Cevelant Leader.

AWFUL.

"Isn't it awful?" said Mrs. Jenks to her husband, "Isn't that awful "" queried Jenks. "Houston's boy was run over and received infer-nat injuries."

Infernal, you mean." No. I mean infernal. I know what I'm talking about."
After a quarrel of five minutes Jenks produced a dictionary, and with considerable trouble managed to find "Infernat."
"There," he exclaimed, "I told you so! Infernat."

"There." he exclaimed, "Hold you so: Illiernal means relating to the lower regions."

"Well," replied Mrs. Jenks and there was a ring of triumph in her voice—"ain't that where he was injured."—Fick Me Up.

DANDY JIM.

BY "HIM," FOR MY FRIENDS, BRUNS AND NINA.

Twas a New Year's Night, and the Storm King

laughed
At the North Wind's sullen roar,
Whilst the driving sleet cut a broad, glare swathe,
As the rain sped on before.
Through deserted streets, by the flekering guides of the tamp lights, low and dim.
Trudged a gaunt, bent form, with a wan, pinched

Tace;
'Twas "The Low Com' "—' Dandy Jim."

And he clutched the ti roat of his taltered coat.

As he pulled down his old hat brim.

As he putted down his old hat brim.

Bravo! Encore! rang again in his ears,
As he thought of happy hearts
He had oft' made glad when his own was sad;
And the old "eccentric parts"
Which he used to play, in his young hey day,
Whitst "the pit" rung with applicate.

'Twas then "standing room" had a nightly boom
From "the circle" to the doors;
And the one great shout when "Our Jim" came out
Was mingled with long huzzas.

Was mingled with long huzzas.
On, slowly on, with a faitering stride,
And the head drops on his breast;
Soon the eyelids close; then, prone in the snow,
Unconscious, he sinks to rest.
As then pleasing dreams through his senses creep,
Nor e'en cold or pain he knows.
For the sweeping blast a clean shroud has cast,
Whist a dirge the night wind blows,
And the clock strikes one, for the life begun
Anew at the old life's close.

Anew at the old life's close.

Last act! Ring down! Thus life's stage is cleared;
But, up in the azure blue
Of heaven, "the flies" now are clear, open wide,
As the soul of "Jim" wafts through.
His a "leading part," but no "lines" or "cues;"
For "support" the Seraphin.
No "waits" at "the box" for "receip's" to tie,
No "cut contract rates" for him:
'Tis "benefit hight," and God's "free list" shows
One "stub," enecked for "Dandy Jim."

A 20.000 · DOLLAR POLICY

ADAPTED FROM THE GERMAN BY D. W. MOORE.

A few years ago I was sent to America Ly a large Liverpool life insurance company, by which I was employed as revisor and inspector. I had received the commission to make a very careful examination of all books, papers, medical testimonies, etc., in several of our American agencies. On my arrival in New York I went to Dalton, Mich., by way of Toledo. In our agency in bation I began my examination. There I tound everything in the best of order. On the fifth day of my stay there appeared in the office a farmer named lianderson, whose life was insured in our company for $10,000, Handerson lived about six miles from the city. The agent in the office, as well as myself, was not a little astonished when Handerson declared to us that he wished to double his policy. If $10,000 were already a large sum for a small farmer like Handerson, then it must undoubtedly come hard to fund to pay yearly a premium amounting to several hundred dollars for a policy of $20,000. He informed us, however, that a relative of lifs in Camida had died recently, leaving him a large tenement house. The net income from this property he now wished to apply to having his insurance doubled. We asked for time to think over the matter, also informed Ipanderson that a second medical examination was necessary, and requester him to return to the office in about a fortingit, when the company's physician would be present too.

A fortingit hater Handerson put in an appearance, and, indeed, this time in company with his wife, who, it seemed, had principally prompted him to have his his mytance thereased. The physician declared, on making the examination, that Handerson was an uncommonly strong, as well as a completely healthy man, and now the policy was accordingly A few years ago I was sent to America by a large Handerson then paid at once the so called premium for a year in advance. The following week I went to Wisconsin, and found myself one evening in the Washington Hotel, in Junction City, when I received a telegrain, in which I was summoned to return to balton immediately. On my arrival there I learned that Handerson's farmhouse had been burnt down on Saturday night, and that he himself had found his death in the fismes. Mrs. Handerson had gone away on a visit to her parents, and the I wo farmhands employed by Handerson had gone to Daiton on Saturday afternoon, to make purchases there, and to spend sanday in the city, as is customary in that locality as soon as the harvest is carried in. The affair seemed so mysterious that the police had instituted a thorough investigation. Mrs. Handerson had returned as quickly as possible from her visit when she received the telegraphic news of the terrible occurrence, and her giref knew no bounds. To all appearances Handerson was irst killed by blows from an axe, and then the house was set on fire by the nurderers. Although the body was mostly charred, the physicians could establish that the skull had been fractured by blows from an axe. On the likewise charred right hand Handerson's weeding ring was found, by which the identity of the body could be established, for the features were no longer recognizable.

Meanwhile the investigation brought nothing to husband in order to come into possession of the insurance money through a later marriage with the widow.

Particularly bad for Taylor was the fact that, three days before the murder, he had left his farm, and had not reappeared there until two days after it. He had not told either his farm hands or his neighbor where he had been during this time. This circumstance was very soon cleared up, though. Taylor had driven to the town of East Saginaw, about fifty miles distant, and had there proposed to a merchant's daughter. On the Saturday that the murder had been committed Taylor had spent the whole day in a numerous company, so that he could easily prove an allbi. Consequently the suspicion that at first existed against Taylor and Mrs. Handerson naturally died out. The Court immediately ordered the release of both. Taylor got married directly afterwards, sold his farm, and took up his residence with his wife in East Saginaw.

Notwithstanding that the police committed to hum for the murderers, they did not succeed in inding them. Several trainps who at that time had been seen in the neighborhood of Handerson's farm were arrested, but were very soon set at liberty again, as there was not the slightest material for a complaint against them.

In short, Mrs. Handerson received the $20,000 insurance, which was paid over to her, as usual, six months after the death of the insured. After the sale of her farm she settled in Dalton, where she mourned her Rusband in complete retirement.

All these incidents had extended my stay in the United States much longer than it had been regionally intended. I returned to Liverpool by way of New York, but remained only a few weeks in England; sail was again sent by the management to the l'uited States, and, in fact to the Far West, I was to establish agencies in Utah, Wyoming and Idaho, where our company had none as yet. From New York I went to Sail Lake City by the way of Chicago, on and and Ogden.

York I went to sair lake city by the may go, omaha and Ogden.
Brigham Young's city pleased me exceedingly,
One day I sauntered through Fourieenth Street, Suddenly I slood shil, not frusting my eyes. On the other side of the street waiked in all tranquility of mind the—murdered Handerson, with a lively smiling mien, and leading on his arm a strikingly pretty young lady in mourning, who bore absolutely no resemblence to his wife in Dalton. For the first moment my feet seemed to have changed into lead. I was unable to take a step further; but this weakness soon passed over, and I hurrled across the broad street, planted with trees, to seek an explanation of this strange appearance! But that was not possible, for at the same moment Handerson discovered me, turned pale, and tried with his companion, who looked up at him with a disconcerted air, to escape from my proximity as quickly as possible. Unfortunately he succeeded in doing so. Three large wagons laden with agricultural machines, which were just passing close behind each other, compelled me to stand still for several seconds in the middle of the street, and when the way was clear Handerson had disappeared with his lady. For a minute or two I felt helpless beyond measure, as I did not know what to do next.

But one thing was certain, that there was a deep and mysterions fraud here, whose exposure was of great importance to me and my company. It could not be that I had a double of Handerson's to deal with, for such a one would not have started and changed color at sight of me, nor would he have taken to flight. Meanwhile I had recovered my self possession and resolved toget at once to the railway station, since to all appearances the couple would make an attempt to escape from the city. I learned at the railway station, however, that no passenger train would leave for any direction under two hours and a half. Discouraged, I directed my steps toward the interior of the city again. As I approached the Continental Hotel, the first and largestin Sait Lake City, Handerson and his lady were just coming out to get into a carriage. Searcely had become a ware of this when a great exclement took possession of me. I called to the policeman standing on the, next corner, and begged him to arrest Handerson. And deciared that they were simply a stought and the landerson ha vehicle, and 'I told the officer and the landlord of the hotel, who had also approached, what I knew about Handerson.

Handerson had for all my assertions only a stereotyped smile, and deciared that they were simply a production of my imagination. He called himself Snyder, and stobbornly and slowly maintained that he neither knew me, nor had he ever been in Daiton. White he remained perfectly caim, his companion completely lost her self possession. As-inow urged the arrest of the couple, nothing remained for the policeman, who had been struck by the singular conduct of the lady, but to take us all to the nearest police station. There Handerson declared to the police captain that he would at once lodge a complaint with the Superintendent of Police respecting the unjust apprehension of his person and that of his companion. At that moment the Superintendent happered to enter the office. For me the appearance of this higher official was extremely favorable, as I was already acquainted with him when he still officiated as police captain in New York, where I had lived formerly a long time. In front of the hotel Handerson, altas Snyder, had represented his companion as his married sister, and, as already related, declared that he had never been in Daiton. To be sure, my communications sounded somewhat fantastic to the Superintendent; Handerson, and superintendent; Handerson answered all his questions with great firmness.

As a matter of course a long official report was gether cunning rascal, who had also deceived his sister.

Meanwhile, through a telegraphic requisition, Mrs. Handerson was also arrested by the sherilf in Dalton. Like her husband, she boldly denied everything, and declared that he had not been among the living for a long time. Then the Superintendent of Police of Dalton, who had been made acquainted with the facts in the case by mail, resorted to artifice. He told Mrs. Handerson that her husband had only wanted to entire her to Salt Lake City in order to take from her there the $20,000; furthermore, that Handerson had secretly formed an intercourse with a young lady in Salt Lake City, who had promised to marry him, and with whom he intended to go to Europe Just as soon as he had the $20,000 in his pocket. What all the questions of the Superintendent had hitherto falled to accompish was now brought about by Jealousy. When Mrs. Handerson heard of the pretended perfidy of her husband her previous reserve vanished at once, and she made in consequence a full and open confession.

Both Handerson and his wife were fond of good ression.

Both lianderson and his wife were fond of good living, and so the hard work of the farm did not please them. They had therefore agreed, by an ingeniously invented trick, to acquire a large fortune in ready cash. To this end they resolved to defraud a life insurance company. In the first place lianderson had himself insured for $10,000, to have this amount doubled afterwards. Chance came to their assistance in the matter. An acquaintance of Handerson's, who bore a certain resemblance to him in figure, died suddenly, and was laid away in the family vanif in the burying ground to be found in the woods bordering on the lianderson farm.

to be found in the woods bordering on the handerson farm.

In the night Han lerson betook himself with his wife to the burying ground, where they opened the door of the vault with a skeleton key. By means of a crowbar Handerson attempted to raise the slab of the grave. But the very heavy slab fell back with a terrible noise, and Handerson and his wife fled for fear that the noise had been, heard in the woods. As no ore one came, however, the two returned to the vault, raised the slab, then opened the wooden hid of the coffin and took out the body. Thereupon they put the slab back in its right place, removed all traces of their nocturnal work, backed the door and diagged the corpse to their house, which they reached, observed by no one, foward three o'clock in the morning. They next conceated the body in the celar. The following morning Mrs. Handerson left home to pay a visit to her parents.

When Handerson heard that all was discovered, a made the following confession:

When Handerson heard that all was discovered, he made the following confession:

After his wife had departed the two farm hands, who did not sleep in the farmhouse, but in a little building about one hundred and fifty sleps distant, went to the city. When Handerson was now all alone on his farm he locked the door, carried the body out of the cellar to his bedroom, laid it on his bed, put his wedding ring on its finger, and split the head open with an axe. Then he laid the axe near the bed, and heaped up a lot of shavings in the room. When his was done, he saturated the shavings with kerosene, and pliced two burning candles in them. Now he left his house, locked the door after him, and repaired, observed by nobody, to a hill in the woods, whence he could see the roof of his farmhouse.

This took place at nine o'clock in the evening, and at eleven he saw his house in flames. By roundabout ways Handerson then went to the next to the nearest railroad station, after he had first made himself unrecognizable by a false beard. So he succeeded in reaching the West unnoticed. Here he looked up his sister and told her of his large lottery prize, which would be paid over to him in a few months. Under these circumstances his sister gave him several hundred dollars, with which he defrayed his living expenses. Handerson and his sister were brought to ballon, where the legal proceedings took place. Handerson was sentenced to ten years in State's prison for body stealing, arson and fraud; Mrs. Handerson received three years behind the bars, while Mrs. Ingersol, who was accused with them, was discharged.

MORE ADVICE.

"I'd like to speak to you a minute," he said, as he met a pollesman at the corner of the street near the Town Hall the other evening.
"All right. What is it?"
"About six months ago I met you down by this street one afternoon."
"Well."

"Well."
"I was after a marriage license, and asked you where to go."

"Yes."
"When you found I was going to be married you all your hand on my shoulder in a fatherly way and said: 'Young man, pause and reflect.' Do you remember?"

"Yes, I hink I do."
"Well, your words struck home. I paused and reflected. I did not get a license."

"No!"
"And I didn't get married."
"You didn't, eh: Well, I am glad if advice of mine prevented you from taking a step which you might ever thereafter regret. Do you want any more advice:"
"Well, yes. The girl sued me for breach of promise and got a verdict of £500, and cleared me out of my last cent and all I can earn for the next five years to come. Mabbe you want to lay your fatherly hand on my shoulder and give me some more wisdom."

more wisdom."
"Young man," said the officer, as he slid his fingers along up his coat sleeve until they rested on his collar, "you move on."—Tit-Bils.

BURMA CUSTOMS.

Two ceremonies in Burma mark when childhood stops and manhood or womanhood begins. The boys have their thighs two oed and the girls their ears bored. The boring of the girls ears is com-menced with a needle, and the puncture is gradu-ally increased until the tip of the finger can be in-troduced.

ally increased until the tip of the finger can be introduced.

The enlarging process is the one carried out in the Polynesian islands, where a native can carry a good sized knife langing in the lobe of his ear. The ugitest mutilation is that of the Esquiman, who punches a hole in his cheek and puts a bone stud into it. The Burmese boy suffers great pain from the elaborate ornamentation of his legs, which are decorated in blue and red patterns.

The ethnographist is rather inclined to believe that dress a first was rather for adornment than as a protection from the cold, and there is good reason for this, because supposably primitive man could a protection from the cold, and there is good reason for this, because supposably primitive man could only have fived in a warm climate, and clothing was not necessary. There can be no possible distinction between the small puncture made today in a child's ears by a woman who thinks herself civilized and the Burmese, the Esquiman, or the Kaflir mother who makes bigger holes in her cars.—New York Tanes.

AN ART WRANGLE.

"When it comes to art encouragement," said the picture hook, "I think I may modestly assert that a great deal depends upon me."
"Poon," said the gimet. "You yourself are absolutely dependent upon the picture moulding.

Now, 1—"
"Dear, dear," cried the screwdriver, "what a bore you are, Not one of you can compare, in an artistic sense, with my friend the corkscrew, who is absent this evening attending an opening on the avenue."
"Why, what does he know of art?" said the tack hammer, "What does he know of art?" repeated the screw-driver scornfully, "You probably forget that he learned to draw white a mere infant, and that he has an unsurpassed pull in all well regulated studios. What does he know of art, forsooth?"— Clevelant Platicideater.

TOO FLIPPANT BY HALF.

"Do you mean to say," interrupted his intended, that you looked on and enjoyed it?" "Enjoyed it? Well, I should say I did; I shouted myself hoarse."

"Harry," she continued after an ominous pause,
"I think our engagement had better be declared off. I could never be happy with a man who can be so dispant to the presence of death."—Washingon Times.
